

ENGINEER KILLS SELF.

Note Before Taking Fatal Jump from Ferryboat.
the coat, prayer book and the farewell note found on the deck of the Pennsylvania Railroad ferryboat Chicago, after her 10,30 trip from the foot of Cortland Street to Jersey City last night, were identified to-day as the property of John Reynolds, of No. 352 Eighth street, Jersey City. He was employed as a locomotive engineer until ill health compelled him to quit. The identification was made by Stratton A. Reynolds, a son.

The note the man left read: "All those who see this will know I am no more. I am sick of this world and hope they will pray for me. Better dead than this life."

Radway's Ready Relief

Frank Malz, 420 Main St., New York, writes: "We suddenly fell very sick with influenza and had to give up our work. So I began to take Radway's Ready Relief. I took it three times a day and I got well again in Radway's directions, and we went back to work two days faster."
